ABOUT CONFERENCE

GCCM 2027 brings together cardiologists, cardiac surgeons, researchers and healthcare professionals for a two-day scientific meeting in Barcelona.

The programme reflects how broad cardiovascular practice has become. Sessions cover interventional cardiology, heart failure and transplantation, electrophysiology, preventive cardiology and cardio-oncology, alongside cardiac imaging, cardiometabolic medicine and critical care cardiology. Dedicated sessions address the role of artificial intelligence in diagnosis and risk prediction.

Delegates present original work as oral or poster presentations, and the schedule allows time for discussion between sessions. The meeting is intended as much for clinicians seeking practical takeaways as for researchers seeking collaborators.
