ABOUT CONFERENCE

GSOD 2027 brings together endocrinologists, clinicians, dietitians and researchers in Singapore for two days.

Incretin therapies have changed clinical practice faster than the evidence base has settled, and the programme reflects that. Sessions cover GLP-1 and incretin therapies, bariatric surgery, childhood and adolescent obesity, obesity genetics and epigenetics, metabolic syndrome, behavioural and lifestyle interventions, the gut microbiome and metabolism, health equity in obesity care, and prevention policy.

Clinical, behavioural and population perspectives are represented across the programme. Delegates present original research as oral or poster presentations.
